INTRODUCTION

This annual report captures a year of transitional leadership at the Johnson Museum of Art, between the departure of Stephanie Wiles in 2018 and the arrival of Jessica Levin Martinez as our Richard J. Schwartz Director in 2019. While unusual, it was in many ways also a year like others, as our energetic, dedicated staff ensured that exhibitions, programs, and outreach continued at full pace.

The year was notable both for its firsts—including the first exhibition curated by Kate Addleman-Frankel, the Gary and Ellen Davis Curator of Photography (see page 19)—and lasts, as our weekend building supervisor Ken Carrier, Associate Director and Harriett Ames Charitable Trust Curator of Education Cathy Klimaszewski, and senior preparator Wil Millard all retired after each spending decades with the Museum. We also marked with great sadness the passing of Seymour R. Askin, Jr., our Advisory Council Member and friend.

It was also a year when we achieved reaccreditation from the American Alliance of Museums and were commended by rigorous peer review as an “exemplary institution” for our “demonstrable impact on the cultural life of the university and the larger Ithaca community” and “commitment to exploring new methods of integrating the collection into the curricular life of departments across the university.”

We more fully shared our history with the publication of our third and largest Handbook of the Collections, made possible thanks to a generous gift from Evalyn E. Milman '60 and Stephen E. Milman '58, MBA '59, creating a vibrant document of our first forty-five years. The total replacement of our original 1973 elevator mechanics—another project finally realized during this year—also positions us more fully for the future.

MISSION

“Bringing Art and People Together”

The Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art welcomes visitors to experience original works of art across a wide spectrum of global traditions, time periods, and media for education, inspiration, and delight. We connect to the vibrant intellectual and cultural life of Cornell University and a public audience through exhibitions, programs, teaching, and research, with free admission for all.

VISION

We create direct experiences with art and catalyze interdisciplinary learning, opening new doors to lifelong inquiry and exploration.

For the second time in our history, Peter Gould and Ellen Avril were called upon to be interim codirectors while the search for our next director was conducted. They did this while also (as deputy director and director of finance and administration) managing budgets, performing essential human resources tasks, and ensuring the care of the Museum building and systems; and (as chief curator and curator of Asian art) curating exhibitions, writing catalogues, and acquiring new works for the collection—a list that barely scratches the surfaces of their many regular duties. This report stands as a document to their leadership, and of the year-round schedule of Museum programming created by the entire staff, who as ever remained nimble and enthusiastic in the face of every challenge.

The Museum staff is grateful to the search committee, led by John Siliciano, Cornell's deputy provost, who worked alongside Pete and Ellen—Gerald Beasley, the Carl A. Kroch University Librarian; Gary Davis, our Advisory Council Chair; and faculty members Iftikhar Dadi and Verity Platt from the College of Arts & Sciences and Maria Park from the College of Architecture, Art, and Planning—as well as to our Council Members, friends, and many partners for their guidance in finding our next director.

This report was completed while working remotely during the summer of 2020, so we are particularly mindful and appreciative of how profoundly the participation of our audiences and generosity of our supporters contribute to our success. As we saw the completion of another fiscal year and the first year of Jessica Martinez's tenure, we thank everyone who has played a part, and as always look forward to bringing art and people together in ways old and new.

FALL 2018

With The Touch of the Butterfly: Whistler and His Influence (August 4–December 16), curator Nancy Green brought together etchings and other prints from the permanent collection by James Abbott McNeill Whistler alongside works by artists who influenced him and followers who admired and imitated him (1). An Evening with Whistler and Friends on September 20 featured presentations by Professor Ellis Hanson, Department of English, on the decadence of Whistler, Oscar Wilde, and their circles; and Amanda Denham, MA '17 in Fiber Science and Apparel Design, on the high fashion of the Victorian period. Richard Valitutto, Sage Fellow in the Department of Music's keyboard studies program, discussed and performed musical nocturnes on the piano.

Coinciding with the annual celebration of the Autumn Moon Festival, Moon (August 25–January 13) presented traditional Japanese, Korean, and Chinese painting, poetry, prints, and decorative arts, along with modern and contemporary works, that all featured the moon. Artist Sarah Brayer (2, at left, with curator Ellen Avril) gave the annual Stoikov Lecture on Asian Art, funded by a generous gift from Judith Stoikov '63, before the fall opening reception. An American who lives and works in Japan, Brayer discussed her work, including the luminescent paper mural Oceanic Moon (3), which was on view in the exhibition for the first time since it was acquired for the collection in 2012. A Moon Festival event on September 21 brought together campus and community groups for a variety of activities for young and old (see page 22).

Curator Andrea Inselmann installed the first of two video works by women featured this year, Howardena Pindell: Free, White and 21, in the Picket Family Video Gallery (August 25–December 23).

Artist Xu Bing, an A. D. White Professor-at-Large, exhibited his five-channel video projection from 2012, The Character of Characters, at the Johnson (August 11–December 23) as part of the campus-wide Cornell Council for the Arts Biennial curated by Professor Tim Murray. Ellen Avril included earlier works by Xu Bing and select Chinese paintings and calligraphy from the Museum’s collection. The artist gave a public talk on September 28 and worked with students (4) in the Tactical Media Studio class (ART 3799) taught by Renate Ferro.

4

By bringing together examples from the Museum’s collection with Cornell Library’s Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections and Kheel Center for Labor-Management Documentation and Archives in Object Lessons: Photography at Cornell, 1869–2018 (September 6–December 23) (5), curator Kate Addleman-Frankel bridged museum and library collections to make new connections between photographs held across campus. Related talks were given at the Museum by artist Meghann Riepenhoff on October 28 and by Taina Meller, Conservator in Charge at the George Eastman Museum, on November 15, funded by a generous gift from Susan Lynch. Professor Emeritus Brian Earle ‘67, MPS ‘71, gave a demonstration of nineteenth-century lantern slides currently held in the Library’s collections.

SPRING 2019

EXHIBITIONS AND PROGRAMS

FIGURE/STUDY was a special installation (January 25–February 2) at Carlton Hobbs Gallery, presented as part of Master Drawings New York and curated by the Johnson’s Nancy Green, Andrew Weislogel, and Brittany Rubin. Selections from the collection ranging from the sixteenth century to today showed the relevance of the figure as a subject for study. In conjunction, Dr. Elizabeth Nogrady (7, center, with Weislogel and Rubin), the Andrew W. Mellon Curator of Academic Programs at the Frances Lehman Loeb Art Center at Vassar College, gave a related lecture at Carlton Hobbs on January 27.

8

For the spring semester (February 9–June 16), Regina José Galindo: La Sombra (The Shadow) screened in the Picket Family Video Gallery (8). Sara Garzón, PhD candidate in the history of art, wrote a curatorial statement that was translated into Spanish by Eliana Hernández-Pachón, PhD candidate in Spanish literature in the Department of Romance Studies. Garzón also discussed the work at a “Contemporary Conversation” Museum event on March 7.

Traded Treasure: Indian Textiles for Global Markets (January 26–June 9) was supported by a generous gift endowed in memory of Elizabeth Miller Francis ‘47. Drawn from the collection of Banoo (9, second from left) and Jeevak Parpia and curated by Ellen Avril, nearly one hundred works spanning five centuries of commerce were also featured in an exhibition catalogue with contributions by Yale’s Ruth Barnes, Cornell’s Kaja McGowan, and Bryn Mawr’s Sylvia Houghteling, who all participated in a symposium on April 19 along with Denison University’s Cynthia Cort, PhD student Alexandra Dalferro, and moderators Nancy Urm and Durba Ghosh. Harvard’s Susan S. Bean gave the keynote address.

Curated by Andrew Weislogel and Brittany Rubin, Undressed: The Nude in Context, 1500–1750 (February 9–June 16) drew from the Museum’s collection, Cornell Library’s Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections, and other public and private collections to examine the trajectory of the nude body in art (10). A public lecture on Michelangelo’s Last Judgment was presented by Temple University’s Marcia B. Hall on February 21, and local artist Ben Roswell held two open sessions of figure drawing with nude models.

10

Organized by Vassar College’s Frances Lehman Loeb Art Center, Past Time: Geology in European and American Art (February 16–May 12) brought together art in a variety of media from the 1770s to the 1890s that reflected that period’s advent of geology (11). At the Johnson, curator Nancy Green included works from our collection that highlighted how photography expanded this fascination into the twentieth century. Related programs included a lecture by Dr. Warren Allmon, the Hunter Rawlings III Professor of Paleontology; a watercolor workshop led by Marcia Eames-Sheavly; and book club sessions to discuss Remarkable Creatures by Tracy Chevalier.

11

The instrumental gallerist Louis K. Meisel—son of Sidney Meisel ’37 and Grace Moak Meisel ’41, and brother of Elliot Meisel ’68—has made gifts and facilitated other acquisitions of photorealist works for the Johnson’s collection. Photorealist works on paper from his collection and by artists he represents were on view (12) in Reality Check (April 27–July 28), curated by Nancy Green.

12

Celebrating Reunion at the Johnson (May 25–July 28) highlighted gifts to the collection from members of Reunion 2019 classes, including Roslyn Bakst Goldman ’59 and John L. Goldman, JD ’59, Nelson T. Joyner, Jr. ’59 and Susanne Joyner, Diann G. Mann ’66 and Thomas A. Mann ’64, and others.

EXHIBITIONS AND PROGRAMS

Additional program highlights

13

A festival event in conjunction with the exhibition Moon (see page 18) included screenings of Carl Sagan's original Cosmos television series on the Mallin Sculpture Court, beneath Leo Villareal's Cosmos installation (13). Campus and community participants included Ithaca Taoist Tai Chi Society, Sciencenter, Cornell Lion Dance, Shimtah, Cornell Astronomical Society, and Cornell Spacecraft Planetary Imaging Facility. Late-night programs were cohosted by SEAM (Student Educators: Art and the Museum) and the Museum Club.

14

Jessamyn Fiore (14), codirector of the estate of Gordon Matta-Clark, discussed the artist's work for the 2018 Findlay Family Lecture on American Art, funded by a generous gift from the Findlay Family Foundation. Matta-Clark graduated from Cornell in 1968 and died in 1978; his complete film and video works are part of our permanent collection.

15

EDUCATION OUTREACH

A morning of intergenerational and cross-cultural connection took place at the Johnson on March 1 overlooking the Morgan Japanese Garden.

Three Zen priests—Masaki Matsubara, Cornell PhD '09, Uchida Ichido, and Nagai Somyo—demonstrated a traditional tea ceremony for students in “Zen Buddhism: Ecology, Sustainability and Daily Life” (ASIAN 6616).

Jane-Marie Law, associate professor and director of Cornell’s Religious Studies Program, spontaneously invited a class visiting from South Seneca Elementary to join them. The third graders were at the Museum being introduced to Asian art and culture through the OMNI program with their teacher, Heather Neville.

Grant awards

The E. Rhodes & Leona B. Carpenter Foundation gave the Johnson $36,000 for the conservation of two works from our collection of Asian art.

Three grants were awarded in support of how the light gets in, the Museum's Fall 2019 exhibition: the National Endowment for the Arts granted $35,000 in exhibition support; the Cornell Council for the Arts (CCA) provided $8,000 in exhibition support; and Engaged Cornell supported an undergraduate intern to partner with the Tompkins County Public Library and the Ithaca City School District's English as a New Language Department on related programming with a $5,000 grant.

The J. M. McDonald Foundation supported the Museum's education programs with a $10,000 grant.

Support for student programs

The Student Activities Funding Commission (SAFC) is the student-run funding arm of Cornell, tasked with allocating over $1.5 million to Cornell student organizations. SAFC funds supported events hosted by the Museum Club and SEAM (Student Educators: Art & the Museum).

CUTonight is a "for students, by students" group, funded by the Cornell Undergraduate Student Assembly, that provides event-oriented funding to student organizations including the Museum Club for innovative late-night programs at Cornell.

Staff activities

David O. Brown filmed for the Mariposa Foundation in the Dominican Republic, a nonprofit empowering girls and young women to break the poverty cycle through educational programs. David developed and taught visual storytelling workshops for undergraduates at Friday Harbor Laboratories, University of Washington, and for graduate students at Cornell's College of Veterinary Medicine, in addition to creating several short films for the Wildlife Health Cornell center.

Matt Conway wrote the liner notes for CAGE | Bertoia, a 2018 album of music improvised by CAGE (Kevin Ernste, Tim Feeney, Annie Lewandowski, and Christopher J. Miller) on sculptures by Harry Bertoia from the Johnson's collection, recorded at the Museum in 2015. Matt also volunteers for the Tompkins County SPCA and is a leader in the Cornell "Elves" program.

Nancy Green taught a course on James McNeill Whistler and his milieu for Cornell's Adult University (CAU) and attended a weeklong summer course at the Courtauld Institute on Scandinavian art. She was the keynote speaker for a symposium in Santa Fe celebrating the art and life of printmaker Gustave Baumann and gave a presentation at the Houston Museum of Fine Arts on the influence of Japanese art on the West. Nancy is a member of the Print Council of America.

Carol Hockett presented at the New York State Art Teachers Association Annual Conference in 2019. She volunteers with Longview, Oak Hill Manor, and Tompkins Learning Partners, and serves on the board of Cornell's Protestant Cooperative Ministry.

Cathy Rosa Klimaszewski retired in January 2019 after thirty-two years at the Johnson Museum, and was later given a Town-Gown Award by the Office of Community Relations for her service to the Cornell community.

Chris Loomis exhibited his work at the Grassroots Art Barn and Damiani Wine Cellars, and helped to judge the Downtown Ithaca Alliance 21st Annual Chili Cook-Off.

Julie McLean presented on campus and community collaborations at the 2019 Association of Academic Museums & Galleries annual conference.

Andrea Murray is on the board of the Trumansburg Conservatory of Fine Arts and curated their annual Invitational Show. She also completed an intensive summer course in painting Pratt Institute's Brooklyn campus.

Brittany Rubin and Leah Sweet coorganized a panel, "A Literal 'Looking Lab': Scientific Collaboration with the Academic Art Museum" (which Leah also moderated), and presented on "New Insights on Old Objects: Maximizing the Impact of Collaborative Technical Research" at the 2019 Association of Academic Museums & Galleries annual conference.

Elizabeth Saggese volunteers with the Cornell Lab of Ornithology and the Tompkins County Community "Beautification Brigade."

Andrew Weislogel sings with Ithaca's Cayuga Vocal Ensemble chamber choir. As council president, he assisted in Ithaca's First Congregational Church's process of becoming a sanctuary church in 2019 to help immigrants at risk.

Annmarie Ventura presented on campus and community collaborations at the 2019 Association of Academic Museums & Galleries annual conference, and on an additional conference panel, "Becoming a Part of Campus Conversations: Reaching Out to Bring Students In."

A practicing artist, Annmarie curated an exhibition of contemporary art at Howl Studios in Ithaca, Line Drawn, in October and continues work on her series of paintings and drawings, Hurricane Harvey.

INTERNS

As the John A. Hartell Intern (Spring 2019), Le Tone Wei helped to run monthly Museum public programs for families with toddlers, guiding explorations of the permanent collection and related art activities.

Vaidehi Reddy, one of our team of visitor services interns, is also an accomplished henna artist. After being impressed by a photo of her work during our spring Museum Advisory Council meeting in May, the Council's vice chair, Susan Lynch, was treated to an impromptu session.
